

National Adzuna Graduate of the Year winner

Terry Tshesebe, a Health and Environmental Sciences student at the Central University of Technology, Free State (CUT) has won the national 2017 Adzuna Graduate of the Year competition.

Terry Tshesebe, 2017 Adzuna Graduate of the Year

Last year, another CUT student Myric September came out tops worldwide and grabbed the prize, beating thousands of other entrants. After attending one of Myric's motivational sessions, Terry entered the competition and won the national leg together with great cash prizes.

This is global job aggregator, Adzuna's 6th Graduate of the Year competition, which took place across 11 different countries. Since 2012, Adzuna's annual Graduate of the Year competition has rewarded the brightest and best graduates from around the world with a package of prizes to help them get a firm foot on the career ladder.

Terry obtained National Diploma in Agricultural Management Cum Laude. He is registered for BTech in the same field. Focused and hardworking, he is preparing for his masters under the guidance and mentorship of Prof. Pieter Fourie in the Department of Agriculture who saw the potential and took him under his wing in his third year of study.

For more, visit: <https://www.bizcommunity.com>