

Festival of Media: Learn the true value of 'like'

MONTREUX, SWITZERLAND: The final speakers have been confirmed for the fifth Festival of Media Global in Montreux.

The speakers will be making their presentations on an editorial agenda that is designed to be packed with advertiser viewpoints, emerging media businesses and industry thought leaders.

New speakers

- Carolyn Everson, new VP of Global Sales, Facebook will join speakers from Coca-Cola and Nestlé to talk about branding in the social networking space;
- Gerhard Louw, head of International Media Management, Deutsche Telekom will discuss how the telecoms giant aims for media strategies that build engagement;
- Anja Monrad, executive director Global CSMB MarCom Operations, Dell will discuss metrics-led engagement, as part of our "Madison Avenue meets Wall Street" debate;
- Dominic Proctor, leader, Mindshare Worldwide & Mauricio Sabogal, worldwide managing director, Initiative will join the other Agency Network CEOs to present a global tour of media innovation.

Also on the programme is the special Showcase agenda, with sponsors including Ebiquity, OMD, MediaMind and Microsoft aiming to create stimulating thought leadership presentations to add to the buzz in the networking breaks. Delegates will also have the opportunity to delve deeper into digital advertising by joining a Yahoo! Academy session - more details on both of these initiatives will follow.
