

Reflecting SA's film industry

The Filmmaker's Guide to South Africa 2007 is currently in the last stages of its advertising cycle. The Guide, now in its sixth edition, is produced in association with the National Film & Video Foundation. The editorial looks at a year in the making, encompassing the resurgence of the film service machine, the creatives, local production and the facilities that make every stills, commercial and long form shoot possible. A major part of the book profiles South African-based international production.

For more, visit: <https://www.bizcommunity.com>