

Hamlet Morule joins bp Southern Africa as head of communications

Energy company, bp Southern Africa (bpSA), has appointed Hamlet Morule as its new head of communications and advocacy. Morule joins bp from Wesizwe Platinum, where he held the role of corporate affairs executive.

Hamlet has more than 30 years of experience in both public and private sectors, having held various roles including, accounting officer for the provincial governments of the North West and Free State, governmental programs executive for IBM, and government affairs lead at Microsoft SA.

He holds various academic qualifications, including an LLM from the University of Free State and Master of Science degree in development and project planning from the University of Bradford (UK).

For more, visit: <https://www.bizcommunity.com>