Creativity and innovation

"Creativity and innovation are very important in trying to change perspectives and trying to change the social circumstances of people," says writer, producer and Play Your Part Awards judge, Firdoze Bulbulia. "We know that people who are innovative find solutions because they are creative, and creative thinking leads to lateral thinking. Lateral thinking is multi-layered, complex, and enjoyable. This kind of thinking increases the chance for creatives to find solutions for challenges in the community." says Bulbulia. Innovation has been dubbed the "engine of growth and development" globally and for many countries that are working to remain competitive, improving innovation and technology is viewed as a way to positively assess their progress and impact. To achieve sustainable economic growth, however, technological innovation needs to progress at a reasonable and recognisable pace. Brand South Africa is the official marketing agency of South Africa, with a mandate to build the country's brand reputation, in order to improve its global competitiveness. Nominations are open.
