

EXSA appoints General Manager

The Exhibition Association of Southern African (EXSA) recently appointed Mandy O'Connor as General Manager. O'Connor who was previously EXSA's Operations Manager, has been with the association for six years. Her responsibilities include overseeing the management of EXSA's offices at Gallagher Estate, Midrand, and all member related activities.

The Exhibition Association of Southern Africa, EXSA, was founded in 1980 as a non-profit organisation representing venues, organisers, exhibition designers, contractors, servicecompanies and associate organisations. Through collective representation, it provides a forum for these participants within the exhibition industry. It adds credibility, status and integrity to its members through membership qualifying criteria and adherence to the strict Code of Ethics. EXSA protects the interests of its members, exhibitors and visitors to exhibitions and provides an information collection and dissemination service to all interested parties, both locally and internationally.
