

PriceCheck launches property portal

PriceCheck has launched a portal on its e-commerce platform.

"We are in the final stages of developing 360 photography and walk-throughs for each property that gets listed on the platform. This is a value added service to reinforce our belief in full product/property/car discovery online and providing the consumer with a complete shopping experience," says Kevin Tucker, founder of PriceCheck.

"In today's world, most people simply do not have the time to view all the available properties in their areas of interest. The logistics of organising and travelling for just one or two viewings is especially difficult for those looking to move to a new province or city. This platform takes the hassle out of the house hunting process," he explains.

The portal also aims to equip real estate agencies with a new medium to list their properties and drive leads.

For more, visit: <https://www.bizcommunity.com>