

Project Design

Maximising project success through strategic project design.

Projects are positioned to be great achievers of socioeconomic development in Africa. Millions of funds are procured and invested into African projects and minimum success is recorded.

Thousands of professionals register and qualify for project management annually, but the discipline remains immature in Africa could this be adding to the low success rate? Could it be that African projects have been designed to fail?

The project design workshop has been developed to equip project manager's with strategic tools to effectively plan, enable, execute and operate their projects so as to increase the rate of project success.
