"Dryden was my date to the Grammy's in 2014, we had an instant connection and have been great friends ever since our first label-introduced writing session. We have written many songs together that have not been released, so when the South African tour was 100% locked in, we jumped on the opportunity to release our first proper collaboration. We wrote and recorded the song in the celebrity suite at the Hard Rock Hotel in Palm Springs, California, which was a magical and unforgettable experience – I always have to pinch myself when I realise that I am writing music and am friends with people we used to watch on MTV in South Africa!" says Jones.

Jones has had over a decade of success in the music Industry and during the first part she cemented herself as one of SA's top female rock vocalists fronting Durban-based rock band, Stealing Love Jones. The band achieved mainstream success with singles Kicks, A Little Easier, Out There and Limozeen, and shared the stage with major international bands such as Fall Out Boy, Violent Femmes, Jimmy Eat World and Groove Armada.

Grammy nominated mixing engineer, Ariel Chobaz, who has worked with the likes of Nicki Minaj, Justin Bieber and Drake, had great things to say about working with the talented Jones. "Esjay lives and breathes music, it's a part of her being and she brings that dedication to every project. She is an incredible producer and writer and I can't say enough about her!"

Jones is currently working alongside actress Taryn Manning (Orange Is The New Black, 8 Mile, Hustle&Flow) on her new record.
