In response to the coronavirus/Covid-19 outbreak, the IAB SA took this year's Bookmark Awards outside, presenting in digital format via Instagram Stories on Thursday, 19 March.

On the night, 139 winners were announced, including 10 Black Pixels, 15 Gold, 47 Silver and 67 Bronze awards, of which 18 went to Digital Agency of the Year TBWA\Hunt\Lascaris based in Johannesburg.

TBWA\Hunt\Lascaris' big winners were 'The Unbound Production' for the Joburg Ballet and the 'Blame no More' campaign for Hype Magazine. Joburg Ballet also picked up Gold in the Digital Strategy Campaign, Silver in the Digital Integrated Campaign and Innovative Use of Media, and a Bronze in the Online Video Series and Excellence in Craft Video Production Categories. While the 'Blame no More' campaign took Silver in the Digital Strategy Campaign, Digital Integrated Campaign and Branded Content categories.

“ You've got to be focusing on the now, that's where your bread and butter is. It's not either/or. The now is the stuff you need to do today; the stuff your clients pay you for. But if you don't focus on the next, you won't be relevant in future. When you live in the-now-and-the-next in a marketplace that's changing at warp speed, you have to face the now minute-to-minute, while the next is materialising simultaneously. It really is about the-now-and-the-next. - Peter Khoury, CCO, TBWA\Hunt\Lascaris ”

Other special honourees included Best Digital Students, Kyle Gounden and Lesego Molaudi of Vega; Best Digital Youngster, Nosipho Maseko of Joe Public United; Best Digital Marketer, Jessica van der Westhuyzen of OneDayOnly and Best Online Journalist, Thomas Holder of Primedia Broadcasting. Musa Kalenga of House of Brave was recognised as having the Best Individual Contribution to Digital while the Best Contribution to Transformation in the Digital Industry was awarded to Joe Public United. The Pixel for Purpose went to Ogilvy, and ABInBev was announced as the Digital Brand of the Year, and Primedia Broadcasting and 24.com as the Online Publisher of the Year.

Charlene Beukes, GM of News24 and jury chair for the special honours category commented: “The special honour awards or the coveted Black Pixels pay tribute to the pioneers of our digital marketing community, who consistently strive to evolve our industry and produce work that can be showcased on a world stage. Through this award, we celebrate all the individuals, organisations and campaigns which are growing and transforming our industry.”

Katlego Maboe

Award-winning presenter Katlego Maboe hosted the Awards, for the third consecutive year, welcoming a virtual audience to the new look. "While I show you the world, shining, shimmering and splendid, we won't allow the spread of the virus and the fake news that goes with it to stop us from celebrating and spreading the real news about the very best of the best in the digital industry," he said, outside with Camps Bay as a backdrop.

The 2020 Bookmarks marked the official launch of the IAB SA's new Front Row initiative, driving transformation within the digital media and marketing industry by creating access to career-building opportunities for creative youth at various levels – whether it be access to relevant industry-leading events or to some of South Africa's brilliant digital media and marketing minds.

"I would also like to give a special shout out to the Red & Yellow Creative School of Business. Thank you so much for your support as we launch our Front Row initiative," she continued.

Quaye commented: "We really had a broad range of expertise coming from different industries creative agencies, digital agencies, clients, publishers, but we also managed to get a good enough balance between the more established agencies verses the smaller and up-and-coming agencies, just to make sure that we have a broad enough and inclusive enough perspective of what great work looks like."

Randall Rothenberg, CEO of the IAB based in the United States even made an appearance from the temporary IAB US headquarters, er, his living room. "Hey, I just want to offer hearty congratulations to the IAB SA and all the Bookmark Award winners. You're doing some of the most creative digital advertising on earth. Keep it up! Congratulations again!"
