Up the Creek

Since the summer of 1990, the Up The Creek festival has been hosted at Up The Creek River Camp, set between a dirt road and the welcoming waters of the Breede River. With various stages, including the unique river stage at the water's edge, you are guaranteed to be entertained throughout the weekend. Although Rock 'n Roll is the original stamp of choice, there are also different types of music mixed into the line-up including pop, some indie folk, a couple of DJ acts and the odd violin solo on top of a kombi!

Jeffrey the Jam Van will be on standby to entertain you before the Main Stage kicks off and the Sedgwick's Old Brown Food Court stage will be running in the mornings and afternoons to showcase new and upcoming artists.

While the festival is one of the few remaining that still allows you to camp next to your car (should you choose) there is also a greener campsite where no cars are allowed or you can book pre-pitched tented accommodation on the Heartbreak Motel website.
