Speaking at the signing, the producer and DJ said, "I'm very excited about this new journey I'm about to take with Universal Music Group. The one leading up to this moment wasn't easy for me. I've had to navigate the industry with no knowledge but a pocket full of dreams. My team and I have worked very hard to get this brand and vision to where it needs to be. Signing with Universal Music Group will elevate the brand more and the music will reach a wider and greater audience. This benefits both my brand and UMG as a stable. I can't wait to release more music for my supporters".

Speaking on behalf of Universal Music Group, managing director, Manusha Sarawan "We are extremely delighted to have Mr Thela as part of our stable. The Gqom genre continues to have staying power and remains a part of our dance music culture.

Mr Thela first burst into the scene in 2020 at the height of lockdown with his record-breaking joint album Make Cape Town Great Again which was certified platinum and nominated for 'Best Gqom' album at the 2021 South African Music Awards.

The lead single iParty was picked up by streaming giant, Netflix, for the original movie Jiva. Born and raised in Samora Machel, Phillipi, where only the brave survive and a few make it out, he owes his musical ear to his church upbringing as a pastor's kid who grew up playing the keyboard at his parents' congregation.

2023 marked a significant growth for the DJ and producer, he took Gqom music to world stages with his first international booking in South Korea.
