“At the request of participating agencies and on the ground of its unique positioning to judge and reward marketing communication in all of South Africa’s indigenous languages (excluding English), Pendoring last year decided to create its own ranking. With the Cannes Advertising Festival’s ranking as guideline, points were awarded according to a points-based methodology to determine the overall performance of each agency, production company, tertiary institution and advertising school,” explains Pendoring GM Franette Klerck.

The points were awarded on the strength of finalists (2 points), craft certificate (4 points), gold craft (7 points), silver Pendoring (5 points), gold Pendoring (8 points), Umpetha/Prestige (10 points) and Public Service Award (8 points).

“The benefit of the Pendoring ranking is that it gives a clear and concise overview of the performance of all the agencies, production homes, tertiary institutions and advertising schools in terms of the above criteria. It is also done totally independent from any other local creative ranking,” Klerck concludes.
