

DW to launch social media series

German international broadcaster Deutsche Welle (DW) will launch a pilot series of 10 social media videos aimed at placing global challenges in a broader perspective. Presented by DW journalist Christopher Springate, The Bright Side will focus on human progress in recent decades, using data, a historical perspective, and graphic visualisation.

The videos will be broadcast weekly on social media and DW's English-language TV channel. The first two episodes deal with the dramatic decline of global deaths in conflicts and the successful fight against famine in many parts of the world.

For more, visit: <https://www.bizcommunity.com>