

Fikile Sibiya appointed new e4 CIO

Fintech software company e4 has announced the appointment of Fikile Sibiya as its chief information officer. She will oversee the vision, leadership, development, and implementation of IT initiatives for the company. This is part of e4's continuous focus on investing in its internal infrastructure, while also strengthening its governance.

Sibiya previously worked at Microsoft and Rand Merchant Bank where she held software consulting, business analysis, demand management and team leadership roles. e4 CEO Grant Phillips says they are excited to have Sibiya on board and he strongly believes she will add tremendous value to the company.

"I look forward to using the knowledge I have gained over the years to contribute to the successful growth of e4," Sibiya says.
