

"Isn't it funny how negative things improve when you sip on the smooth life?"

Life doesn't seem to be getting any easier, no matter where you find yourself in the world. And in South Africa we seem to be experiencing our fair share of challenges. But we all know that with a positive, easy-going attitude, things can turn out to be a little less serious. This is the perfect time for Tropika, the country's favourite juice brand to re-establish itself as the smooth antidote to any rough situation.

"Tropika has a heritage of nearly four decades, making it a unique part of many South African's lives. We wanted to reignite this nostalgia and the brand love consumers hold dear to their hearts. Well known for its smooth taste, this commercial showcases how Tropika seamlessly fits into everyday reality, making everything just a little smoother," shares Miantha Roux, Clover Beverages Business Unit head.

Francois de Villiers, ECD at Joe Public adds: "We needed to make the idea of 'smooth' relevant to today's South African youth, while still maintaining the brand's island roots. So we put ourselves in their shoes or rather, their car seat. We took one of the most daunting experiences they face, their driving test, accompanied by a few other infamous South African challenges, and gave it an island twist. Showing that no matter how rough things get, you can get through it, when sipping on the smooth life with Tropika."

"In Bryan van Niekerk, Asher Stoltz and Eduan van Jaarsveldt of Team Best, we found the perfect partners to bring the off-beat storytelling, understated humour and laid-back style of the islands to life and keep South Africans entertained and thirsty. (Big ups to Bryan who also composed the kiff music track.)"
